The second batch of books is in and have been sent. There is one AEA that has not received the books. The first mailing was sent back. Renee will continue to try to contact them. We will send some books to the Iowa Resource Library. The Department of Education contact has been given a book and she also would like more to share with members of the Parent Educator Consortium. We will put some of the books at our booth at the Brain Injury Conference. The books have been received very positively. Should continue as needed. One of our next steps is to look into other ways to provide the information to schools, AEA's, hospitals, and rehabilitation services, as well as anyone else who may want to use the information in the guide. Some ideas were e-books, applications for Android and Apple, or placing it on flash drives. We will continue to look into this. The book was shared via a webinar thanks to the Brain Injury Alliance of Iowa. There was a nice attendance number for that.

Maggie shared with us that we have 400 decks of cards that we can distribute. Her question is how should we distribute them? It was suggested we look at the youth centers or other facilities in our individual areas and then email Maggie with a number of decks that she could send to us to distribute. Whatever is left by the time of the Brain Injury Conference in March we could have at our booth.

All service task force members are to be brain storming about possible ideas for a next project whether it be making something, continuing something, or writing articles for various newsletters across the state.
